IRRIGATION VS. WATER POWER

State Engineer's Ruling Contested.

He Denied the Application of L. B. Dewey fer Water.

Applicant Contends That the Engineer Has No Right to Anticipate Future Needs.

Important points in connection with water appropriation rights are involved in the appeal of L. B. Dewey from the ruling of State Engineer Doremus on an application for 1700 second-feet of water to be taken from Green river, at a point near Gunnison Buttes, in Emery county. The water applied for by Mr. Dewey was to be used for a big power proposition, and the application was rejected by the State Engineer on the ground that it would cut off the supply of water needed for irrigating arid lands lying farther up the stream. As stated in the Engineer's indorse-

As stated in the Engineer's indorse-ment of the application;

"The proposed use of the water will require a continuous flow of a large volume past the place of the proposed use, regardless of the future needs for irrigation above, and so threaten to prove detrimental to the public inter-

In further stating his position, Engineer Doremus says:

"If the State has the right to control the use of this water, it will certainly be a mistake to permit its use for pow-er to the exclusion of the reclamation of so considerable an area of land and all that will be concomitant to such

Must Not Anticipate.

In his appeal to the Sixth District court, Mr. Dewey holds that the State Engineer was in error in rejecting his application, "as it appears affirmatively therefrom that the waters were sub-ject to appropriation for beneficial use," while it is further claimed that "an application for water must be act-ed upon according to the then state of facts, no discretion existing to refuse it for the reason that its acceptance might deprive conjectural future appli cants of the opportunity to appropriate the same waters."

The decision of the distinctly legal question raised will be of not a little interest to those who are interested in water appropriations.

Remembered by Miss Maude Adams

the Actress's Youthful Days in Salt Lake.

William A. Nelden yesterday received a unique and beautiful memento from the actress, Maude Adams, and one which he naturally prizes highly. There is a pleasant little history connected with it, too, which will be of interest to Miss Adams's friends and admirers

When Miss Adams was a little girl of 8 years, Mr. Nelden had a drug store on the ground floor of what is now the Kenyon hotel building. Miss Adams and her mother lived upstairs, the latter keeping a dressmaking establishment. Every morning on her way to school Mande stopped at the drug store and asked Mr. Nelden if he would not give her a stick of licorice root, which he did.

She Came to Seek Her Daughter Who Is New in School.

Years passed and the little girl be-came a famous actress, but the friend-chip which existed between her and the ship which existed between her and the "licorice root man" was never broken. When she came here in triumph a few months ago Mr. Nelden did not attempt to see her, because he knew how tired and busy she was, but on the opening night in which she was seen here in "Babbis" he sent her a package of licorice root, tied with blue ribbon. There were eight sticks, just the number of years that had passed over the little gir's head when she made her daily visit to his store.

Until yesterday Mr. Nelden had re-ceived no word from the gifted actress, but among other packages which came to him in the morning was a leather case. Upon opening it he found a pencil of bronze gold made in the form of a stick of licorice, with the inscrip-tion, "W. A. N. from M. A." With it was a little note from Miss Adams, which merely said: "Another licorice stick for remembrance. Faithfully, Maude Adams."

The reservoir was nearly empited and Superintendent of Sprinkling Seddon was obliged to lay off most of the sprinkling carts. Many complaints about the dust were received at the superintendent's office all day yesterday, but he could do nothing to relieve the situation. In addition to the sprinkling in the paved district. Main street as far south as the Sait Palace, was the only thoroughfare that received a wetting down, and that was only in the evening.

MRS. MAYBERRY UNDER ARREST

Ex-Husband Swore to the Complaint.

Claims That the Child Was Prevented From Meeting Her-Released on Bond.

Of the extreme sensational order is the story told by Mrs. Mary A. May berry, who was arrested yesterday evening on a complaint aworn to by her former husband, Andrew P. Mayberry, superintendent of the Bingham system of the United States Mining company, charging her with threatening to kill and murder.

The custody of their child, Emma Le Votto, aged 17 years, seems to be at the bottom of the whole trouble,

"I will show him that he cannot drive me out of town," said Mrs. Mayberry at the county jail last night. "I have made no threats, but I have said, and I say now, that they shall never raise a child of mine—my flesh and my blood. I'll show that cur up to the world when I go on the stand. I say that had I killed Andy Mayberry not a jury in the United States would have convicted me."

Mayberry returned from Los s, Cal., where she has been living for the past year, night before last. She engaged a room at the Halls hotel and yesterday morning went to see her daughter at the Rowland Hall school. She claims to have made no threats other than to say that she will never stand to have her child raised by Mr. Mayberry's present wife. She had re-turned to her room at the Halls last evening, and says that she was in the act of preparing for the supper table when the officers served the warrant of arrest upon her, and she accompanied them to the county jail.

Secured a Divorce.

On August 28, 1903, Mrs. Mayberry says she was granted a decree of di-vorce from her husband on the ground of desertion. She says her husband had been untrue to her and had also fur-ther failed to provide her with the ommon necessaries of life, but that she had the complaint fixed up charging him with desertion. She says the di-vorce was granted a year ago in August and that her husband remarried last May. Mrs. Mayberry claims that she was awarded alimony in the sum of $75 a month, but that she has not re-ceived in excess of $40. She admits, however, that she receives $35 a month rent from a house she owns in this

At the time of the divorce the cus-At the time of the divorce the custody of the child was awarded to neither of the parents. It was agreed that she should be pinced in Rowland Hall, to remain there for one year. At the expiration of that time the girl was to choose between her parents. The year has passed and the mother of the circle to here to claim here daugater. girl is here to claim her daughter, or prevent, if she can, her former husband from getting the child.

Sought Daughter in Vain.

"Soon after my divorce," continued Mrs. Mayberry, "I was hustled off to California by people whom I thought to be my friends. I remained there until last March, when I came back to Salt Lake to see my child. I went to Row-land Hall, to be told that my daughter was in Bingham. I went to Bingham and from there took the stage and went up to the mines. When I got there I was told that my child was in Salt Lake. There was nothing to do but come back here, I was determined that I should see Vetta. From the Halls I called up the school and I was told that my daughter was there. Fifteen minutes later I was at Rowland Hall. only to be informed that my daughter was not in. I left word for her to come to me at the Halls the next morning. course she did not come. By tele-none I inquired for her and was told one of the teachers that she was in, d by another that she was not in. my niece to go up to the school, and first girl she ran into was my daughter.

Threatened With Arrest.

"Now, I knew she was there, and that night I went up again, resolved that I should see her. I did not knock, but went right inside. They tried to but went right inside. They tried to hustle me into the parlor and tele-phoned for a policeman, saying that I had a pistol and wanted to murder my child. That is the way in which they have tried to keep me from seeing my daughter."

Mrs. Mayberry says that she saw her when she asked her if she wanted to live with her mother or be raised by her father's second wife, Vetta said she preferred to stay in Rowland Hall un-til she graduates before making a

Mayberry says that she will not Mrs. Mayberry says that she will not be tried before Judge Diehi and that she will insist upon a change of venue. It will be remembered that Mrs. Mayberry tried to commit suicide in this city a year ago last February. In referring to that, she says she was tired of suffering and thought she had endured all that she could stand. She swallowed an ounce of laudanum and slashed her wrist, but was unsuccessful in her attempt on her life. She says that she intends to remain in Salt Lake and that the present Mrs. Mayberry will never have the raising of will never have the raising of her daughter

Released on Bail.

Has He Confessed?

Mulock's only communication with the arresting officer has been by long-distance telephone, from Butte to Warrick. According to the information gained by Mulock in that way, there is no question in regard to the identity of the prisoner as the man Stevens, who for several weeks prior to the mur-ler had been either stealing or borrow-ing, or getting small sums of money in both ways from Druggist Vermillon, and who left the city under suspicious circumstances very soon after the mur der, to be chosed over a good part of Idaho and Montana by the Salt Lake newspaper man. The Warrick officer even indicated to Mulock that Stevens had confessed to the crime. If this is true the man will, of course, be brought to this city at once and if he should to this city at once, and if he should have concluded upon reaching Butte to fight the murder charge, it will be necessary to rely upon the evidence in possession of Mulock and Sheriff Emery to secure a requisition. There is no doubt in the minds of those who have been following the case that the contractions of the contractions of the contractions of the contraction of t been following the case that the evi-dence is at least sufficiently strong to warrant a complete investigation.

Stevens was arrested at Warrick on he charge of stealing a saddle and oridle in Blackfoot, Ida., but the charge as brought for the purpose of getting im in custody for investigation in connection with the more scrious crime. He insisted at first that his name was Charles Hawthorne, but under pressure finally admitted that he was George Stevens, that he had known Vermillon, and that he left this city right after the murder. These admissions were followed by others still more damaging, it is claimed, the full import of which

Evidence That He Frequented the Drug Store of Vermillon.

Corroborative evidence to support the clues leading to the arrest of George Stevens, on suspicion of having murdered Wilford A. S. Vermilion, is already beginning to materialize in Salt. Lake City. Mrs. William Edwards, an aunt of the murdered man, told a Tribune reporter yesterday afternoon that her nophew had spoken to her of a man presumed to be Stevens. This man had called upon Vermilion and had claimed to have known him in Cali-fornia. Dr. P. G. P.
